

Missing U235 Bottle Found

Senator Says Loss Was Due To Negligence

Washington, June 2—(AP)—Senator McMahon (D-Ill.) disclosed tonight that the long-missing bottle in the Chicago uranium-235 mystery has been recovered from a buried box, but a tiny portion of the atomic material itself has not yet been found.

McMahon said the loss of the material appeared to be due to "carelessness and negligence."

The announcement was made at the end of a day studied with developments in the congressional investigation of the Atomic Energy Commission, headed by David E. Lilienthal.

Other developments:

1. Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) accused Lilienthal of violating the law on atomic secrecy with "brazen effrontery" and of permitting persons to take part in the 1948 Eniwetok A-bomb tests without a full loyalty checkup.

2. Testimony was received that a guard at the Chicago atomic laboratory where the uranium is missing had a police record. Carroll L. Wilson, general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission, said the guard's record showed a charge of grand larceny, but no conviction. He expressed confidence the guard had nothing to do with the loss.

3. Atomic Chief Lilienthal coldly and emphatically denied Hickenlooper's charge of law violation in clearing some AEC employees without a full loyalty checkup immediately. This was necessary, he said, to speed vital atomic work.

4. McMahon said congressional investigators are trying to find out why a new atomic plant at Hanford, Wash., under construction by General Electric Co., is costing three times more than the original $7,000,000 estimate.

"Will Be Pursued Further"

He said no claim of "fraud or malfeasance" has been made, but commented: "This matter will be pursued further."

5. Without explanation, the Lilienthal hearing was postponed after the end of today's stormy session. No date was set for renewing hearings.

Senator McMahon, chairman of the joint Senate-House committee investigating Hickenlooper's charges of "incredible mismanagement" by Lilienthal, said the missing vial was turned up in a box used to bury "hot" radioactive materials from the AEC's Argonne laboratories in Chicago. The loss was discovered last Feb. 8 but was not reported to the FBI until seven weeks later.

McMahon said three boxes were dug up before the bottle—which originally held more than an ounce of U-235—was discovered.

CCC Given Power To Store Crops Under Loan Plan

Washington, June 2—(AP)—Congress today passed a compromise bill to provide critically needed storage facilities for the nation's bumper wheat crop.

The compromise, which broke a long deadlock, was approved by both Senate and House and sent on to President Truman for his signature.

The legislation gives the Commodity Credit Corporation power to provide storage facilities on crops—especially grain—on which the CCC makes loans to maintain crop price supports. Grain must be in storage to qualify for government loan.

The action came as a storage crisis was reported developing in the southwest. Earlier, the agriculture department had asked the maritime commission for some laid-up liberty ships to use as emergency storage bins.

Coincidentally, Secretary Brannan announced the agriculture department had started work on control measures designed to cut the 1950 wheat crop as much as 25 per cent under this year's yield—likely to be of near-record proportions.

ORDERS ENFORCEMENT OF FIREWORKS LAW

Springfield, Ill., June 2—(AP)—State police were ordered today to make arrests for any violations of the Illinois Fireworks regulation law.

Donald J. Walsh, state public safety director, said the state officers will arrest all persons engaging in the sale or possessing illegal fireworks.

State law prohibits use or possession of any fireworks of the explosive or noise producing type, except small caps used in cap guns.

Chicago FBI Head Jailed For Defying U. S. Court Order

Chicago, June 2—(AP)—Chicago's FBI chief was "imprisoned" today for defying a court order to reveal his office papers, but he won his release three hours later on an appeal.

Touhy, prohibition era gangster, contends he was illegally convicted of the 1933 kidnapping of John "Jake the Barber" Factor. He is seeking his release in a habeas corpus hearing before Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Factor's attorney asked that McSwain produce FBI records concerning preparation of the Touhy prosecution. Over McSwain's protests that he was under orders not to permit the papers to be made public, Judge Barnes ordered him to bring them to court.

McSwain refused, and Judge Barnes found him guilty of contempt of court. He ordered the FBI official committed to the attorney general, or his duly appointed representative, "for imprisonment until he obeys the order of this court and produces the records referred to or until discharged by due process of law."

Hiss Accused Of Being Spy

Chambers Points Him Out In Court

New York, June 2—(AP)—Whittaker Chambers pointed at Alger Hiss today and said the former state department official fed government secrets through him to a prewar Soviet spy ring.

The deal to funnel secrets from the state department to the spy ring was made across a table in a dimly lit restaurant in New York's Chinatown, Chambers said.

The Russian ring also sounded out the possibility of getting documents from Hiss' brother, Donald, the witness said, but Hiss was not sure he could be used.

Connected With Russians

Chambers, self-styled former courier for the communist spy ring, said Hiss was connected with the same Russian underground "apparatus" that he was.

He described Hiss and his wife, Priscilla, as stubborn communists who refused to leave the party when Chambers did in 1938.

"I urged the Hisses to break with the party," Chambers said. "They replied that they would not break. Alger Hiss said what a great pity it was I had broken."

Shortly before the trial recessed for the night, the defense began cross-examining Chambers. Hiss' attorney hammered away with questions intended to show up Chambers as a liar.

Chambers admitted that he committed perjury in 1937 when he took an oath of office for a job with the federal Work Progress Administration.

He swore to uphold the constitution, he said, at the same time he was working as a communist for the government's overthrow.

The witness was vague as to what secrets Hiss allegedly passed on to him.

"They bore on munitions but I cannot be more explicit," he told Federal Judge Samuel H. Kaufman and a jury of 10 men and two women.

Chambers said he photographed documents Hiss gave him and gave the pictures to J. Peters, whom he called the prewar head of the Soviet underground in the United States.

Hiss, brilliant former state department official, is on trial on a charge of perjury.

The government claims he lied when he told a grand jury here last December that he never turned state department secrets over to Chambers.

He also is charged with lying when he said he had not seen Chambers since Jan. 1, 1937.

AN OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK

James H. McGraw, Jr., president of the McGraw-Hill Publishing company, says that if American industry is allowed to earn the money to buy the equipment, it can raise the American standard of living 50 per cent in the next 25 years.

"No other nation can promise its people that much and deliver on the promise," he states.

Not long ago Henry Kaiser said that American industry could eventually treble the living standard of the American worker.

We have no doubt that these business leaders sincerely wish to bring about the improvements they predict. Certainly if it is to be done, it will have to be done by them and not by government boards. They should be given every chance to do it.

We doubt, however, that they have made proper allowance for rising population and the gradual exhaustion of some of our natural resources.

THE SPENDING PRESSURE

(Philadelphia Bulletin)

There is little complaint of government in business when the purpose is to hand out money. The budget bureau at Washington shows that over the last 15 years the treasury has passed out more than $14,000,000,000 in gifts to farmers and businessmen. The bureau doesn't think this is unpopular or going to be ended by an economy-minded congress, for it predicts a few more billions will soon be added.

About two-third of these subsidies went to farmers. But the businessmen came in for a share when the government paid billions during the war to mineral and food processors to keep down prices. The maritime commission is still paying subsidies to help pay the cost of building ships and to meet operating expenses.

The bureau omits from this list of subsidies federal grants to states, or the immense sums now paid and loaned to veterans under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

If these and other federal payments are added, it is plain that millions of Americans have a vested interest in government spending. Reducing it is not the simple task of firing office-holders. Congress has the job of convincing constituents they must do without government money. It is a tough assignment.

The date at which gunpowder was first used in artillery in battle is uncertain, but is believed to be 1331.

Diet Important
In Treatment Of
Bright's Disease

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

Written For NEA Service

Bright's disease, or nephritis, may begin suddenly, either immediately after an acute infection, such as tonsillitis, pneumonia, or scarlet fever, or it may not show up until several months later. Sometimes it develops without any obvious reason. The symptoms come on rapidly, but painlessly. The patient feels uncomfortable and may notice some puffiness under the eyes. Swelling of the lower part of the legs, and perhaps even bloody urine, slight fever and chilly sensations are common. Nose bleeds, headaches, loss of appetite sometimes appear.

The lessened amount of urine and its dark, bloody, or cloudy appearance are characteristic. Chronic nephritis starts more gradually, and symptoms resemble the acute variety but are less severe. Accumulation of fluid (dropsy or edema) is common.

Rest And Diet

As soon as diagnosis has been made by means of examining the urine and the blood, treatment should be begun. In acute Bright's disease, bed rest is necessary. Diet is important and is now devised to fit the ability of the kidneys to take care of the food eaten.

In the chronic form of Bright's disease, special attention is given to the accumulation of dropsical fluid. Drugs are frequently used to stimulate the secretion of the urine, and thereby remove some of the excessive fluid. Accumulated fluid inside the abdomen is often drawn off through a needle.

Much improvement has taken place in the treatment of nephritis. In that which follows acute infections, like pneumonia or scarlet fever, new hope is offered by the sulfa drugs and penicillin. These drugs often stop such infections before they have had a chance to damage the kidneys seriously.

Note: Dr. Jordan is unable to answer individual questions from readers. However, each day he will answer one of the most frequently asked questions in his column.

THE DOCTOR ANSWERS

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

Question: Please tell me what causes a feeling of being tired in the morning. I don't feel like getting out of bed even with plenty of sleep.
Answer: There are others who have the same trouble. It is possible that an anemia or some other condition is dragging you down but only a thorough examination would reveal a possible physical cause.

No Security On Earth And
It's Foolish To Expect It

By Hal Boyle

New York, June 2—(P)—The big grab today is for security.

Individual men want it. Nations want it. The world wants it. And that is why, perhaps, men, nations and the world are all nervous, touchy, irritable. They all have the jitters—emotional as well as political and financial jitters.

Every person and every group wants to feel safe from life's multiple disasters. It is as true of a railroad porter in Oklahoma as it is of a wall street broker or that man in the Kremlin.

The broker looks under his bed to see if a Communist is lurking there. The spy is hiding under his crimson couch cover.

The lover worries whether his true love will stay true to him. The poor man worries whether his job will last. The rich man worries whether he can hold his riches, and he thinks the masses are leagued in a plot to take his money.

All of them worry whether they can keep their youth, their beauty, their strength or their teeth—and none of them can.

Security isn't a goal of just the classes or the masses. It is the goal of all. The search for security is mankind's oldest quest, his eldest dream. He has sought it since he was exiled from the garden of Eden.

Security An Odd Thing
But security is an odd thing. The faster you chase it the easier it flies from you. The more you want to be secure, and the more insecure you feel. For security to the average man means what he has—or getting what he hasn't. He wants to make himself a changeless island in a world of change. And that is rather hard to do on a globe where men are born, grow old and die.

Death is the final negation of the hope for security on earth. Heaven—and all races pray to a heaven of some kind—may be the positive answer. For this answer we must wait and yearn—and earn, if we are wise.

The one sure thing is there's no security while you're alive. And there never has been. Therefore it is foolish to expect it.

Kings and clowns lose their crowns or their sense of humor. And disease at last will take a lady in the highest castle as surely as it does the poorest workman woman in the lowest hovel. War and famine, these have been always with us, too, twin nightmares that run our long dream of peace and plenty.

The earth, our wonderful, renews its beauty. We aspire and pass, never to walk this same old path in the same old way again. But why should this fact be a ticket to despair? I know of a millionaire who is deathly afraid of Communism and the atom bomb. He built himself a subterranean shelter and stocked it with food enough to last him and his family two years. Is that security. If it is, he doesn't feel it.

I know of a woman who also was afraid of the atom bomb. Figuring that New York would be a primary target in the event of another war, she bought a house in New Mexico. Then she learned it was nearer Los Alamos, a capital of American Atom bomb secrets.

She moved back and bought a home in Long Island. No sooner was she settled in than she discovered that in nearby Brook Haven was another government atom power laboratory.

So she came to this conclusion: "To hell with the atom bomb. It is part of our living, so I'll face it."

And she has. She hasn't found security. But she has found a finer formula: That you can't meet life by running away from it.

Fat Is Not a Nice Word When Applied to the Body

Don't say it's your thyroid while reaching for the box of chocolates. Possibly one bulky person in 100 has some glandular disturbance and that is truly a case for a physician. Never take any treatment for a gland condition without your doctor's advice. But for the other 99 per cent who are trying to fight the "Battle of the Bulges" common sense is the watchword. It is not necessary to go hungry, either. Furthermore, it just doesn't make sense to go on a strenuous diet—take off weight and then quickly put it back on again when the diet period is over. For it is obvious that one cannot continue a starvation diet over a protracted period. Within the last year or so, several diet and vitamin "plans" have appeared on the market, which means cut down on the food intake and fortify with vitamins for hunger distress. But as mentioned above, you can't keep this up very long and when you quit—back comes the fat.

An exhaustive survey recently made among Illinois druggists showed one outstanding reducing aid is not based on the diet and vitamin "plan." It allows you to eat plenty. You eat all you want but you eat L.E.S.S. Sounds like double talk, but it isn't. It definitely steers you from eating more than necessary for the energy you spend. At the same time, it dehydrates and eliminates. Over a half million bottles of this preparation, called Renel Concentrate has been sold in Illinois in the past 2½ years. You can get a four-ounce bottle of Renel from any Illinois druggist. Mix with 12 ounces of canned grapefruit juice and take just two tablespoonfuls twice a day. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose that ugly fat, the makers agree to refund your money.

New York Is No Longer Center For Creative Writing

New York—New York, which has long boasted that it is the nation's center for creative writing, is apparently being outstripped by Toledo, O., and Los Angeles, Calif.

An analysis of 23,000 entries thus far in the National Five Arts competition shows also that twice as many women as men are submitting entries. The competition is being sponsored by the National Five Arts Award, Inc., a non-profit organization, to stimulate creative writing.

Scientist Claims Fish Fell From Sky Like Rain

In a communication to the technical journal "Science," Biologist A. D. Bajov of Biloxi, Miss., said he thinks fish can be drawn from the water by tornadoes—or small tornadoes called "devil dusters."

Here's what Bajov said happened in Marksville on Oct. 23, 1947:

"In the morning of that day," he related, "fish ranging from two to nine inches in length fell on the streets and in the yards. There were spots on Main street averaging one fish per square yard. Automobiles and trucks were running over them. Fish also fell on the roofs of houses."

Bajov said they were freshwater fish, native to local waters, including such varieties as large-mouth black bass and a fish called the "goggle-eye," a perch.

The scientist said it was a calm day in Marksville when the fish fell and the New Orleans weather bureau had no report of any large tornado, or updraft, in the vicinity of Marksville at that time. However, declared Bajov, he and a colleague had noted that on the day before the "rain of fish" in the community, Marksville had experienced "numerous small tornadoes, or 'devil dusters'."

He said also there is historical evidence for such fish-rainings—including a record by an ancient named Athenaeus who described such a phenomenon nearly two thousand years ago.

GLASGOW

Mrs. Maude Bimby and Miss Dollie Swagerty of Murrayville spent a few days the past week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Adams.

Carl Dean Anderson of Eldred is a visitor here with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Riger.

WOULD-BE SUICIDE CHANGES MIND IN AIR

Melbourne —(P)—Sidney Charles Dyer, tired of life, dived from his Melbourne hotel window, 40 feet above the street. In the air he made a snap decision to live some more. Today he is still alive.

Dyer told police that when he felt himself falling through space, he wanted to keep on living. "I bled" was "clumsy workman," twisted in air and back-somersaulted on to a shop veranda next to the hotel," he said.

The fall knocked him unconscious, but he suffered only bruises. Dyer, 35, is an artist.

ROODHOUSE

Roodhouse—Mr. and Mrs. James F. Hopkins have returned home from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. John Hofmeister of Liberty. Mrs. Hofmeister is the former Betty Day of Roodhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilkerson and daughter, Miss Dorothy Wilkerson, left Saturday for Prescott, Ariz., where they will visit in the home of another daughter, Mrs. M. J. McNarie. Mr. McNarie was formerly coach in the Roodhouse community high school.

Miss Jacqueline Airsman will leave the first of the week for Kan-kakee to spend several weeks in the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ainsworth, former Roodhouse residents.

Mrs. Kenneth Shaw was hostess Friday evening to her supper club at a dinner held at Brock's Cafe, Winchester. Present besides the hostess were: Mrs. Clarence Edwards, Mrs. Henry Hannaford, Miss Carl Michel and Miss Dorothy Wilkerson.

The Glasgow Sportsman's Club held its annual fish fry at the Club's park lake, south of Glasgow, Sunday, May 28, with a large number of members and their families present.

The frying of the fish was started about 11 o'clock, and with the fish added to the contents of baskets of food, a very appetizing dinner was spread on the numerous tables arranged about the park. The afternoon was spent in fishing and visiting.

The fish, bread, coffee and iced tea were furnished by the club.

4-H Club Meets

The Glasgow Homemakers 4-H club met at the home of Charlene Hester Monday evening, May 30, with president Ruth Daniels calling the meeting to order. Roll call was answered by a health rule. It was announced that $5.45 was made at the recent bake sale.

A talk on "Why Good Posture is Important" was given by Mary Hutchings. A demonstration on how to prepare strawberries for the locker was given by Jean Hutchings. A reading, "The Ball Game" was presented by Charlene Hester.

BRITISH SHOEMAKERS DISLIKE "COBBLERS"

The National Federation of Boot Trades Associations adopted a resolution asking newspapers to stop using "this offensive word."

Few delegates to its annual conference backed a speaker who said "cobbler" was part of the language and objecting to it would only draw more funny headlines. Most of them sided with another man who said the only meaning he knew for "cobbler" was "clumsy workman."

Dictionary definitions of the word include both shoe mender and clumsy workman.

Mrs. Eddy Speaks On Great Need In War Areas

Mrs. Sherwood Eddy was the guest speaker at the Grace church W. S. C. S. meeting held at the home of Mrs. A. B. Applebee, on West Walnut St., Wednesday, June 1st.

Mrs. Eddy, who has recently returned from a tour of the war torn countries of the world, gave very interesting, as well as pathetic reports on conditions in those countries. She spoke of the magnificent work done by the missionaries, although handicapped by inconveniences. She mentioned the great need for food and clothing for the peoples of those countries, and the need for houses and doctors. She expressed a feeling of overwhelming abundance on returning to the states. Mrs. Eddy also mentioned that she heard no complaints from those needy people. Destruction, she said, has brought about problems about which Americans do not know.

Mrs. Eddy mentioned that more than 70 out of 80 of Japan's larger cities suffered destruction, stating that the only goods they had for clothing is what Americans have sent. She mentioned problems among the young people, yet gave encouraging thoughts as to the future of Japan's youth. In all countries visited, she told of the great need of help as church women, to rebuild materially and spiritually.

Mrs. Eddy was introduced by the past president, Miss Amy DeMotte. Miss DeMotte also had charge of the devotions, using the 23rd Psalm.

Mrs. R. A. Gates offered prayer. A gold star honor roll, bearing the names of the eight men of the Ashland community who sacrificed their lives in World Wars I and II, was dedicated at special services held at Ashland Memorial Day.

Between five and six hundred persons attended the dedication. The ceremonies were conducted by Mayor Sam Danenberger and Mrs. Walter Adkins, who gave an inspiring address entitled "Lest We Forget."

The honor roll, which stands in front of the new municipal building, has gold lettering against a background of black. The names inscribed on it are William Hanning and George H. Pettit, World War I, and Clarence L. Anderson, Stribling Boynton, John E. Davis, Lester D. Flinn, Glenn E. Latham and Russell E. Settles, World War II.

The municipal swimming pool at Nichols park will be opened on Saturday, June 4, according to announcement Thursday by Russell Kellay, park superintendent.

The pool will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. on weekdays and from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Sundays and holidays. Paul Rist will act as manager during the summer. The life guards are Glenn Williams, Dick Grunty and Connie Hanley.

Workers inside will be Darrell Steinheimer, Joan Cam, Sylvia Ploner, Nell Ann Taylor and Lois Cobb.

No changes have been made at the pool this year, although extensive repairs and improvements were made last year and the preceding year.

The superintendent of the kindergarten is Mrs. Robert Coats, who is assisted by Betty Townsend, Mrs. Charles Calvin, and Mary Lou Stewart. The superintendent of the primary is Mrs. Arthur Yates, whose assistants are Mrs. James Young, Jeris Ann Bates, and Mary Ann Ritchie.

The church is equipped to take care of 120 children. All interested are asked to register early in order to make sure of having a place in the school program.

ISLAND OF ESCAPE

THE STORY: Bea Cosgrove, unsatisfied that Lily Warren's death was suicide, has just proved to herself and Fred Willard that the island of the other people is real. As they worked they were conscious of the approaching fire. The gusty wind was hot now and whipped bits of burning grass ahead of its main front. The smoke was denser, yet between puffs there was still comparatively clean air.

"It didn't," Fred said quickly. "No one could see it in the dark. Why and how could I light it now?"

"It's no beacon," Bascombe said. "It's a fire in the long grass and the brush. It's growing fast."

Bea Cosgrove heard the snick as Harding automatically lowered the cocked hammer of the rifle. He pushed to a place by the window, turned quickly. His voice carried authority when he spoke.

"We've got one chance to stop or turn that fire. We'll go to the shed for tools. See! All of you follow me. I'll show you where we can backfire. We may be able to save the house if it rains soon enough."

Henry Harding stuck his shovel upright in the ground, put his long flashlight on a rock so its beam stabbed toward the opposite side of the island. "We'll backfire here." He had to shout to make himself heard.

The others were breathless and gasping from the long run with their tools and equipment.

"Make grass burn!" Harding commanded. He showed them now to twist the tough, long-stemmed grass into compact brown masses that burned fiercely when he lit them with his board of matches. He showed them how to scatter

The fire on their side of the black path was out. Shouted orders were passed along from one smoke-shrouded figure to another. "Fall back! If it jumps, try to get back to the rock!" The voices were hoarse, as unrecognizable as the blackened figures.

The wind was a hot fierce blast. Bea Cosgrove staggered along, clutching a shovel. Half blinded and in the uncertain light from the fires, she stumbled over rocks and bushes, but a few more yards between herself and the burned area. A few more, and her feet were stinging lead. She tripped, fell heavily. She got up with the aid of the shovel, left it as she stumbled on.

The earth trembled beneath her aching body. In a few seconds a dull rumbling came to her. "Thunder," she muttered looking in the direction of the sound. She knew at once it was not thunder.

BEYOND the main house, from the cave and lower storerooms, flames were leaping high into the air. Gasoline-fed flames. The house, the squatting water tower, made a silhouette against their brightness.

As Bea stared, the house lifted into the air. It moved slowly, in one piece. As it settled back, it disintegrated.

The earth trembled beneath her again, a heavier jar. Concussion pushed at her. There was no sign now of the house or tower.

She was suddenly conscious of growing light near by. She turned quickly to face intense heat. The main flames had jumped the backfire in a dozen places. Its several spearheads were joining into a new solid front.

Bea forced herself to her feet, ran as she could see others running toward the rock outcrop. The scant check of the charred path gave them a few precious minutes to race along the fire's face toward shelter.

It was a near thing for some. A spending of the last strength of desperation for others. And for a time they had to fight for even their scant margin of safety, had to beat at encroaching flames running along paths of grass.

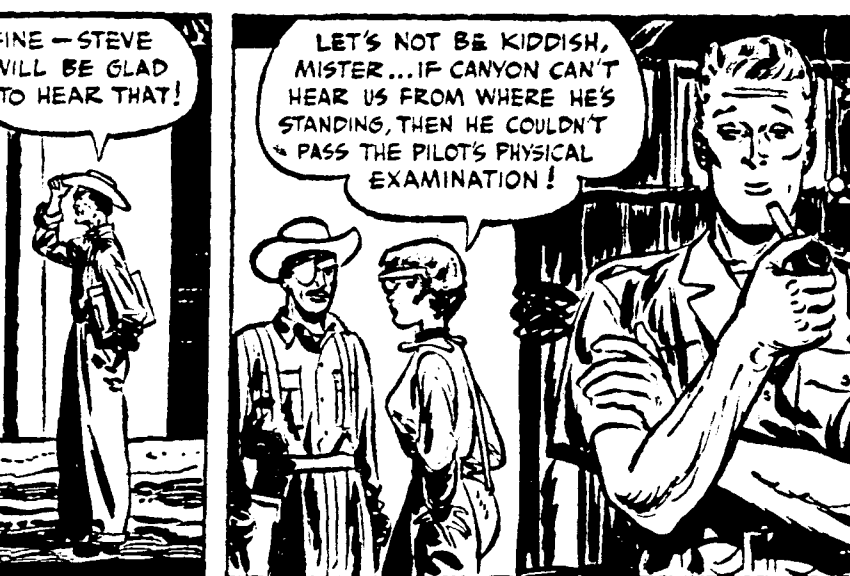

Then the main fire was past. It swept down the island, roaring and chucking again, apparently unchecked by the slowly increasing rain. Its brilliance merged with the leaping flames from the cave.

Clovers, Grasses First Class Fare For Land, Cattle

By The Journal-Courier Farm Editor

Land that won't pay interest and taxes is poor land, in any man's language. It got that way through improper use and erosion and there's more of it in the United States every year.

For years a certain 16 acre tract of hillside land bordering Little Sandy creek near the Morgan-Scott line was in that bracket. But everything's different now. It has a new face, a thick covering of legumes and grasses. Best of all, it has furnished abundant forage for 25 Holstein cows and heifers for more than three weeks now. And it will continue to do so until fall. It's valuable property.

The prescription that saved it, made it productive, was: imagination, acceptance of available technical knowledge and hard work.

Swiss Forebears

R. E. Stocker of Murrayville is the owner of the farm located four miles west of Woodson. A dairyman of Swiss-American ancestry, he's lived in Morgan county for nearly 30 years. Interested in soil conservation, he bought the rough 160-acre farm and decided to see what he could do with it.

Visitors congratulate his accomplishments. They especially like his truly conservative philosophy, adopt a plan for each soil type on the farm, make each improvement practice pay its own way and don't get in too big a hurry.

The 16 acres sloped rather sharply to the south. It was gashed by gullies that got deeper with each rain. The topsoil was entirely gone in some areas.

Locust trees were planted in and near the gullies five years ago. They've slowed down the water runoff and some of them are already big enough to furnish shade for the cows.

Calls On Chemistry

Then soil tests were made to determine what, and how much, new plant food was needed to get a pasture established. The result of these tests fooled everybody. Curiously enough, there was ample potash present, even though there was a deficiency of the element in the more level fields of the farm. The phosphorus test was way low. Every acre needed at least two tons of limestone.

A new fence was built on the break. The land was seeded to lespedeza—the poor soil's clover. It made a rather feeble, spotted stand, but it helped to hold the soil at home.

Legumes And Grasses

Then some of the lesser gullies were smoothed out and the needed plant foods spread. A mixture of timothy, broomrape grass, alfalfa, sweet, red and ladino clover seed was drilled in with a tiny seeder pulled by a gentle team. A bushel and a half oats, too much for good land, was also planted.

The pasture made a pretty good growth last spring. The cows were turned into it occasionally, until the ladino began to bloom.

Mr. Stocker doesn't believe in either hard or late grazing. "Too late in the fall, too bad in the spring," he observed.

The cows are crazy about the ladino. Since it cost $2 a pound, only five pounds were seeded on the 16 acres.

"Just about half enough," Stocker decided.

A Nourishing Pasture

It doesn't take the cows all day to fill up. They're waiting at the pasture gate at 11 a.m. By 1 p.m. they look mighty happy as they chew their rinds and lounge under a locust tree. Ladino clover tests showed in Urbana a year ago today showed a protein content of more than 23%, pretty rich fare for anybody.

Mr. Stocker plans to improve the pasture by building a pond and stock tank late this summer.

He's mighty enthusiastic about farm ponds. The one built near the farmstead serves three purposes, he says.

"It stopped a bad gully, it put water in a dry well and the dam furnished a road to the west side of the farm."

And it also has a recreational value, he feels. The locust and multiflora rose boundaries make a mecca for birds. And there's a blue-pointed skiff for boating. Bass, crappie, bluegills and catfish planted in the lake are getting bigger every day.

Mr. Stocker stood on the brow of the hillside pasture and looked down on his sleek black and white cows and said, "I'm mighty happy about this pasture. But I've got a lot more work to do."
